INDIAN ADULT EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

ANNUAL REPORT 2010

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you all to the General Body Meeting of the Indian Adult Education Association and to place before you the Annual Report of the Association for the year 2010.

Fifty-Eighth All India Adult Education Conference

The 58th All India Adult Education Conference was held at Vivekananda Kendra, Kanyakumari from December 11-13, 2009. The theme of the Conference was Youth and Lifelong Learning. In all, 326 delegates from Andhra Pradesh, Assam, Arunachal Pradesh, Bihar, Chandigarh UT, Chhattisgarh, Delhi, Goa, Gujarat, Haryana, Jammu & Kashmir, Karnataka, Kerala, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Manipur, Meghalaya, Mizoram, Orissa, Pondicherry UT, Rajasthan, Tripura, Tamil Nadu, Uttar Pradesh, Uttarakhand and West Bengal representing different institutions like universities, colleges, NGOs, SRCs, JSSs, ZSSs, government organisations, attended the conference. The programme included inaugural session, seven plenary sessions, group work (seven special interest groups on various topics) and valedictory session. One plenary session was devoted to organisational presentations, another one for International Reading Association and the rest for academic paper presentations in which total 44 papers were presented. Apart from this, a Peace March from Gandhi Mandapam to Vivekananda Kendra was taken by the delegates to highlight the importance of Lifelong Learning for Women and Youths.

The inaugural session of the conference started with the lighting of ceremonial lamp which was followed by the welcome address by Shri K.C. Choudhary, President, Indian Adult Education Association. In his address he said that the Association has completed 70 years and has established a name in the hearts of the adult educationists. He attributed the success to the patronage and support extended by the members, office bearers of the Association and adult education practitioners.

The conference was inaugurated by Dr. SM Ramasamy, Vice Chancellor, Gandhigram Rural University, Gandhigram. As he was taken ill suddenly, his inaugural speech was read by Dr. L. Raja, Reader, Department of Adult, Continuing Education & Extension, Gandhigram Rural University. Dr. Ramasamy in his address said that the main focus of the adult education programmes in India has been on adult literacy and neo-literates. He felt that in a technology driven knowledge based competitive world, adoption of new technology and improving the skills of labour force is needed. This implied creating a variety of learning and training opportunities for youth and suggested that universities, Jan Shikshan Sansthan, State Resource Centres and relevant NGOs have to play a vital role to shape the future of the Indian youth. For this he suggested to develop a workable model for field oriented and practical oriented learning practice.

Rev. (Dr.) Gnana Robinson, Founder President, Peace Trust, Kanyakumari while addressing the delegates said that education is for liberation, enlightenment and freedom and true education works in the interest of the people concerned. He also said that education enables every individual to know his/her rights to live with dignity.

In the conference Shri Chaturbhuj Patidar, Chairman, Shri Ambika Patidar Samaj Dharmik and Parmarthik Trust, Rangwasa, Madhya Pradesh was conferred Special Mention Award for the year 2009 by Dr. Gnana Robinson for his dedicated work to the cause of women education and literacy.

Thereafter, Dr. S.Y. Shah, Professor, Group of Social Sciences, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi introduced the theme of the conference. He said that there are 100 million adult illiterates of the age-group 15-35 of which 65 million are women. The annual conference is timely as NLM has started implementing Saakshar Bharat Programme which aims to make 70 million people in 365 low literacy districts of the country literate. This is a challenging task in view of depleted institutional structure. He felt that active support of various organisations is needed for this programme and expressed that the quality of training programme which has gone down over the years need to be improved to a great extent. Hence, he advocated the need for convergence between National Literacy Mission, National Skill Development Mission, Mahila Samakhyas and University programmes. Dr. Shah also made a mention of PALDIN programme developed by JNU in collaboration with UNESCO and IGNOU for the training of adult education functionaries.

Dr. Shah further stated that the Jan Shikshan Sansthan should upgrade their skill training programmes like Korea and adopt a systematic process of evaluating the learners and awarding certificates which are not only recognised but also facilitate them to get employment.

The dignitaries on the dais were honoured with sacred Khada by Shri A.H. Khan, Vice President, IAEA.

At the end of inaugural session Dr. Madan Singh, General Secretary, IAEA proposed the vote of thanks. He said that adult education is not simply literacy but is a life skill education. Hence, Universities, NGOs and other organisations should develop such skills so that they are used in the adult education programmes.

Knowing Thiruvallavur, who composed Thirukkural, to spread the teachings of Jainism - peace and service to humanity;

Appreciating the efforts of delegates in their deliberations in groups and plenary sessions; and

Declares that the teachings of Swami Vivekananda and Thiruvallavur are in complete resonance with all that the conference has come up during these three days.

In the same way Kanyakumari conference recommendations were drafted by a committee headed by Dr. Madan Singh. Other members of the committee were Dr. V. Reghu, Dr. K. Parthasarathy, Dr. Swati Chandorkar, Dr. Manjeet Paintal, Dr. Rajesh, Dr. R. Rajan, Smt. Nishat Farooq, Shri V. Balasubramaniam, Dr. L. Raja, Dr. Arun Mishra, Dr. Jayadevan and Shri Prem Chand (Rapporteur) and read by Shri Prem Chand. The recommendations were:

1. Different terms are used for adult education by different agencies. In the last International Conference on Adult Education (CONFINTEA VI) held in Belem, Brazil from December 1-4, 2009 it was suggested that the term "Youth and Adult Lifelong Learning" should be used for these programmes. The conference accepted this suggestion and recommended that this term should be publicised among the adult education functionaries and in the public at large.
2. Different Ministries/Departments of the government, universities and other educational institutions, NGOs, political parties, corporate sector, professional organisations, self-help groups, library movements are engaged in conducting youth and adult learning programmes. There is a need for networking of these organisations.
3. National Literacy Mission has been assigned the overall responsibility of supporting/managing the 'Saakshar Bharat' - Mission 2012 programme. The programme envisages (i) functional literacy for young and adult illiterates of the age-group 15 plus, (ii) basic education in the form of equivalency programme of Class V, VIII and even beyond, (iii) vocational education for non-literates, neo-literates and drop-outs and (iv) continuing education programmes for youth and adult population. NLM alone will not be able to undertake this huge responsibility. There are several other organisations and agencies who are engaged in education and training of youths and adults, providing them vocational training to make them employable, make them aware about health care, economic development and other relevant issues which form part of youth and adult learning. There is a need to form partnership with them in the form of public-public partnership and public-private partnership in the implementation of these programmes.
4. To achieve good coordination and convergence of different agencies there is a need to form inter-sectoral committees at national, state and district levels.
5. To avoid duplication of efforts, specific roles need to be assigned to different agencies such as universities, SRCs, JSSs and NGOs.
6. Those districts/states where the adult female literacy rate was more than 50% are not being covered under 'Saakshar Bharat' programme. It was felt that in most of these states/districts, high level of enthusiasm and motivation was created among the functionaries and the neo-literates who were participating in continuing education programme. Discontinuation of their further learning may create hardship for them and a sense of distrust in the organisers/ administration. Hence, it is necessary that the facilities of equivalency programme and vocational training are continued in those districts and states also.

7. 'Saakshar Bharat' needs to lay special emphasis on the coverage of weaker sections of the society viz. SC/ST, women, minorities, etc. Specific programmes relevant to their needs and aspirations needs to be formulated. Border and hilly areas and disabled persons also need special attention.
8. Continuing education centres which were setup earlier under CE programme lacked infrastructure facilities for library, reading room and other activities. Hence, Lok Shiksha Kendras now being setup at Gram Panchayat level under 'Saakshar Bharat' Programme should have proper infrastructural facilities including accommodation.
9. NGOs with good track record and good performance should be identified and encouraged to participate in the programme implementation, resource support, evaluation and research activities.
10. Jan Shikshan Sansthan setup by the Govt. of India in different parts of the country and other vocational education institutions are going to be assigned the responsibility of guiding and organisation of skill development training at the Gram Panchayat level. It has been observed that while some of these institutions have done good work, there are many institutions which have not provided skills to learners which enable them to get employment or start their own business. The conference recommended that a review of the quality of vocational training being imparted by these institutions should be reviewed. Certificates/Diplomas to be issued by these institutions and their quality of training should facilitate the beneficiaries to make use of their training for their employment or starting their own business.
11. Information, Communication, Technology (ICT) should be used in a big way for providing information and knowledge on different aspects of programme implementation. For collaboration and convergence, there should be a website which places the relevant information in public domain.
12. Departments of Adult Continuing Education and Extension were setup in about 100 universities in the country. Some of them have been now closed in states like Gujarat and Bihar and some others are likely to be closed. Hence, there is a need to take steps at the central level/UGC to promote Departments of Youth and Adult Lifelong Learning in different universities of the country including strengthening of the existing Departments of Adult Continuing Education and Extension.
13. Quality and duration of training of functionaries has gone down to a great extent. There is a need to improve the quality of training of the Resource Persons, Master Trainers and the Preraks. Academic programmes should be developed by different universities/academic institutions to train a cadre of qualified manpower in this field.
14. There is also a need to promote action research in the field of youth and adult lifelong learning. National Literacy Mission/UGC need to encourage educational/ research institutions/individuals to take up research programmes in this area.
15. 'Saakshar Bharat' is a new programme. There are several doubts in the minds of administrators, implementing agencies and the public at large about the programme. Media, both print and electronic need to be oriented properly so that they can play a major role in popularising the objectives and content of the programme.

16. Indian Adult Education Association (IAEA) which is an apex national level NGO in the field of youth and adult lifelong learning should have a leading role in documentation of different activities, good practices in different areas of programme implementation and research.
17. IAEA should also organise regional workshops on the theme of 'Saakshar Bharat' and for its advocacy.

At the end, Dr. Madan Singh, General Secretary, IAEA proposed vote of thanks.

A cultural programme was held on the first day of the conference in which the delegates presented different types of state specific items. Shri A.H. Khan, Vice President, IAEA coordinated the programme.

Dr. APA Rehman, one of the delegates gave the participants 'Hasya Therapy' on the second day of the conference which was enjoyed by one and all.
